SOCIAL CHANGE

OUR MISSION

True pioneers often set out with limited resources, no clear path, and no instructions. Nonetheless, they move boldly forward. In 1984, we began in much the same way: working from a burned out building in East Harlem with almost no funding. We arrived at soup kitchens, jails, and shelters—places others would not go—and set up free legal clinics to meet our clients on their terms. As we expanded, we brought in the next generation of organizers and change makers, to battle fresh injustices and bring new solutions to intractable issues.

Today, the Urban Justice Center provides a platform for dynamic advocates to fuel social change, leading the way for a just, fair, and decent society. Through our Anchor Projects, we provide everything from legal support to survivors of domestic violence, to organizing assistance for sex workers and street vendors. Through our Social Justice Accelerator, we assist leaders of tomorrow turning great ideas into flourishing advocacy organizations.

Our work is made possible by a broad community of dedicated supporters. People who care. People like you. Thank you for being there yesterday, today, and most crucially, tomorrow.
